The book Issue #16
<http://www.airfleets.net>

We have prepared this book to make you enjoy the content of the website Airfleets.net in a paper format. We have integrated aircraft currently in service for civilian operators (with data such as serial number, registration, type and key dates of the plane).

We hope that this book will satisfy you and we apologize if you see some mistakes which are inevitable for such a large number of data.

Supported aircraft

The list of aircraft below shows the data included in this book. This list includes the majority of civilian aircraft currently in service worldwide. The code in brackets will allow you to identify the type of aircraft in the following pages.

- Operator name
- Country where the operator is established
- IATA and ICAO codes (past & present)
- Website address
- Radio callsign
- Operator logo
- Fleet matrix : Displays the number of aircraft in service by type (see above for codes)
- Plane MSN : Manufacturer Serial Number (for some aircraft, in brackets : the Line Number LN)
- Plane registration
- Plane type
- Date of delivery: note that if the plane left the fleet for a temporary lease to another operator, the delivery date will be equal to the final integration into the fleet. Sometimes the lack of information requires us to estimate the date of delivery
- Year of production: between brackets is indicated the age of the aircraft
- Fleet includes all supported aircraft in service. In case of an aircraft temporary lease (for a significant duration) to another operator, it is not indicated. instead in the opposite listed aircraft leased are indicated
- Separation : in case the operator have more than one plane type, a separation will be inserted into the fleet listing
